Tony Odarg November 7, 2020

Biden has wanted to be president for a long time and has run several campaigns for it. He finally did it though. Just a few hours ago, several news outlets called the election after Biden won Pennsylvania and now Nevada. I'm not going to say Biden was my first choice for 2020; that man would've been Bernie Sanders. However, I do hope that some good economic policy will come from a Biden administration. It's not clear what is in the works as of yet, but I do think this administration will be more competently run than Trump's ever could be. I predict the unrest throughout the nation will calm down and the media hysteria, aside for Fox News of course, will die down as well.
